Divine Substitution: Humanity As the Manifestation of Deity in the Hebrew Bible and the Ancient Near East (Forschungen Zur Religion Und Literatur Des Alten Und Neuen Testaments) (German Edition) By Stephen L. Herring

English summary: Divine Substitution is an investigation of ancient conceptualizations of divine presence. Specifically, this thesis investigates the possibility that the ancient Mesopotamian conceptualization of cultic and royal statues, thought to actually manifest the presence of gods and kings, can likewise be found in ancient Israel. Despite the overly pessimistic view of the later biblical authors, material objects were almost certainly believed to extend and manifest the presence of God in pre-exilic Israel (e.g., standing stones). Likewise, the later polemics against such cultic concepts demonstrate Israel's familiarity with this type of conceptualization. These polemics engaged in the rhetoric of mutilation and destruction of cultic representations, the erasure and re-inscription of divine names, and the rhetorical deconstruction of the specific Mesopotamian rituals thought to transform the dead statue into a living god. Though the biblical reflection of these concepts is more often found in the negative commentary regarding "foreign" cultic practices, S. Herring demonstrates that these opinions were not universally held. At least three biblical texts (Gen 1:26f.; Ex 34:29-34; and Ezek 36-37) portray the conceptualization that material images could manifest the divine presence in positive terms. Yet, these positive attestations were limited to a certain type of material image - humans.

Editorial Review

Review

"...the assemblage of evidence and arguments to support the book's central thesis is impressive. [...]
...Herring has provided a thought-provoking analysis of these biblical texts, and a reminder that scholars must be careful to interpret ancient cultic practices within their own conceptual world rather than imposing later ideas from Greek, Christian, or Postmodern thought." --Bryan Bibb, Furman University
