Crockery Cookery: 262 Tested Slow-cooker Recipes By Mable Hoffman

Mable Hoffman (1922-2010) was a food stylist and home economist. In the early 1970s, she received a gift of the newly invented electric slow-cooker. Unsure of what to do with it, she decided to write a cookbook. Hoffman's test kitchen amounted to 20 slow cookers lined up in her Solana Beach home. The resulting "Crockery Cookery" (1975) was an instant bestseller. It was "the right book" at "the right moment," the New York Times declared in 1976, adding that 20 million Americans who had bought slow cookers "were eager for tips." The initial infatuation with such slow-cooker recipes as her simple "Round Steak with Rich Gravy" or "Mission Chicken" (with grapes and topped with slivered almonds) would wax and wane. Yet the shift in American culture that first helped popularize the gadget -- the rise of the working woman -- also secured its future on kitchen countertops. A prolific and award-winning cookbook writer, Hoffman published 18 cookbooks over 25 years, working with her husband, Gar, and daughter Jan. Only a third were dedicated to the slow cooker, and two books emphasized speed -- "Cookies in Minutes" (1993) and "Pasta in Minutes" (1994).

Eric Valentine:

As a pupil exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library in order to make summary for some e-book, they are complained. Just minor students that has reading's internal or real their interest. They just do what the instructor want, like asked to the library. They go to right now there but nothing reading really. Any students feel that looking at is not important, boring as well as can't see colorful images on there. Yeah, it is being complicated. Book is very important for yourself. As we know that on this period, many ways to get whatever we really wish for. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Crockery Cookery: 262 Tested Slow-cooker Recipes can make you experience more interested to read.
