Editorial Review

About the Author

Jo Beverley is a New York Times bestselling author of historical romance. In a starred review of her most recent medieval romance, Lord of Midnight, Publisher's Weekly described her as "Arguably today's most skillful writer of intelligent historical romance." The author of twenty romance novels, she is a four-time RITA winner and a member of the Romance Writers of America Hall of Fame.

Margaret Moore Award-winning author Margaret Moore actually began her career at the age of eight, when she and a friend concocted stories featuring a lovely damsel and a handsome, misunderstood thief nicknamed "The Red Sheik." Unknowingly pursuing her destiny, Margaret graduated with distinction from the University of Toronto with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English Literature.

Margaret was a Leading Wren with the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve. During her stint with the armed forces, she learned many new skills, including how to yell at men, how to spit-shine shoes, what it feels like to be tear-gassed and the joy of marching for no discernible reason.

Since selling her first book to Harlequin in 1991, Margaret has written more than twenty historical romance novels and novellas for Harlequin Historicals⁷ and Avon Books. She now has over four million books in print. A past president of the Toronto Romance Writers, Margaret lives in Toronto, Ontario, with her husband, two teenagers and two cats. Visit her web site at <http://www.mmoore.net>.

Deborah Simmons is the author of more than a dozen historical romances and novellas. A native Ohioan, she graduated cum laude from Wittenberg University in Springfield and was a journalist before turning to fiction. Her first book, Heart's Masquerade, was published by Avon in 1989 and was followed by a number of Harlequin Historicals. Specializing in Regency and Medieval settings, she has created several series, including the popular de Burgh brothers. Her next release, The Gentleman Thief, is scheduled for January.
